The Department of Germanic and Slavic Studies cordially invites you to a lecture by

Gil Anidjar
Columbia University

Jackals and Arabs
(Once More: The German-Jewish Dialogue)

Thursday, October 26, 6 pm, Mosher Alumni Hall
(Mosher Alumni House, 2nd Floor)

The lecture takes its point of departure in Maurice Blanchot’s claim that Kafka initiates a new form of dialogue. By reinserting Kafka in the debates (or dialogues) on the German-Jewish dialogue and the way in which that dialogue was always already framing, rehearsing and announcing the Arab-Jewish dialogue, Anidjar argues for the significance of form — and what it entails — in and toward the Arab-Jewish dialogue.

Franz Kafka, The Thinker, 1913.

We gratefully acknowledge generous co-sponsorship from the following campus agencies: Comparative Literature Program, Department of History, Department of Religious Studies, Interdisciplinary Humanities Center, Jewish Studies, Center for Middle East Studies.