This course, which is the core requirement to our new Minor in Translation Studies:

1) Promotes the acquisition of language skills, the improvement of writing skills & the comprehension of translation as an art.

2) Provides a model for the study of literature, in both national and comparative (or world) contexts.

In addition to practicing translation, you will study the history of translation studies and address diverse cultural, national, and historical views toward translation.

The course satisfies area G, Literature, and the Writing Requirement of the General Education Program.
